BRIDE WAS WELFARE WORKER

Henry G. Brock Served Time for Auto Killing; Secret Wedding Out

Pittsburgh, July 1 (I.N.S.).—Slipping away from friends after a simple wedding ceremony, which was carefully kept secret from all but a few intimate friends, Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Brock of Philadelphia today began a honeymoon trip, the itinerary of which was as carefully guarded as was the ceremony at Episcopal Church of the Ascension.

The bride was the former Miss Margaret C. Burghin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Colman Burghin of Pittsburgh, who met her husband, son of a wealthy Philadelphia family, while he was in Eastern penitentiary serving a sentence for manslaughter, having been convicted of causing the deaths of three persons, when he struck them with his car.

Out of this chance meeting, while the then Miss Burghin was doing prison welfare work, grew the romance which yesterday was climaxed in a carefully guarded wedding.

It was learned today that the groom's country home at Muncy, Pa., was being remodeled and redecorated, and that the newlywed couple might be expected to take up residence there shortly.

2 ACCUSE TOM QUIGLEY AT RUM TRIAL

"Protection" of $50 a month was paid for a year to Police Inspector Thomas Quigley by Louis Barlow, Thomas Quigley, in Louis Barlow, rum runner and variety show operator of Chicago. His law suit today in the Chicago circuit court.

But the aggravated Barlow, whose complaint went to court in an uproar, complained while testifying that, despite the protection money, his place was subjected to police liquor raids many times.

After every raid, Barlow said, he made a hurried visit to Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley, who assured him every time that "Everything is going to be all right."

Mayor Quigley, his brother, the inspector, and twelve others are defendants in the case.

In addition to his "protection payments," Barlow testified, he contributed a total of $1,500 to the four campaigns of Mayor Quigley.

Jacques Kark, also testified to paying money to Thomas Quigley and having dealings with "Dick Henry and Eddie Carlin."

At the request of former U. S. Attorney Leo A. Rogers, counsel for Inspector Quigley, the witness stepped down from the stand and attempted to pick the inspector out from the fourteen defendants, but selected the wrong man.

When he was asked to identify "Dutch" Henry, who incidentally was in the room, Kark pointed out Defendant Louis Sears.

Then, when asked to identify Carlin from five defendants, one of whom was Carlin, the witness failed to make identification.

Judge Morris, presiding, asked Kark then if anyone on either side had instructed him not to identify any of the defendants. Kark's response was an emphatic "No."

KING BITTER TO NEW PREMIER

Ottawa, July 1 (A.P.)—Governor General Bennett's refusal of the request of former Premier Mackenzie King for dissolution of Parliament has given rise to a controversy as to whether he violated constitutional practice.

J. J. Macdonald, Labor leader, declared in Commons the Governor-General, by declining the request, had made it obvious Canada was not an autonomous country.

In leading an attack against the minority, in the House, former Premier King said:

"If, at the instance of an individual, a prime minister can be permitted to go to the House and permitted to vote for himself large sums to a ministry which is not formed and he permitted to vote all the supplies necessary to carry on the government of the country for a year, we have got to a condition in this country that threatens constitutional liberty, freedom and right in all parts of the world."

There was an uproar from the Conservatives at this allusion to the Governor-General as an "individual," with shouts of "Name him!" Mr. King said he believed the individual named "according to his own conscience—honestly and sincerely."

It has been pointed out Lord Bess was more or less bound to follow precedent set in Great Britain and that when Mr. King quit, Ramsey MacDonald, British Labor leader, came into power under similar circumstances.

Ritchie, flashing his special police badge, held up a car at the corner of Stoughton and Pleasant streets, Dorchester, last Friday. He had the misfortune to pick upon Paulsen Bernard and John Corcoran who were in state clothes.

Today he found himself in court again. He was charged with speeding, having no lights on his car and of passing a street car while it was stopped.

LAY EPIDEMIC TO MILK

While thirteen new cases of scarlet fever were being reported in Lynn today, health bacteriologists completed an analysis of milk served at banks in Weymouth and Lynn and announced that the epidemic was due to unpasteurized milk.

The sale of the milk which was found to contain the germs, according to analysis, directly caused the scarlet fever epidemic, which has gripped Lynn and Weymouth for several days. Mr. Michael R. Donovan, Lynn health commissioner, traced the sale of the milk to Andrew Schuchter, Inc., Lynn caterers, who say they purchase their supply from a Weymouth farm.

Dr. Donovan visited the dairy today and, after inspecting the cows there, prohibited the owners from supplying milk to Lynn. State authorities are today expected to take similar action to prevent other dairies whose output is under suspicion from supplying milk within the boundaries of the state.

With the spread of the disease in Lynn, city physicians have called into consultation Professor Hans Vinner of Harvard and Dr. Lyman Jones, both expert bacteriologists. Every effort to check the epidemic will be made.

NEW POLICY AT METROPOLITAN

Beginning this Saturday, July 3, the Metropolitan Theatre, Boston, will change its opening day policy.

Henceforth its weekly program will start every Saturday instead of every Sunday. This arrangement is made, the theatre management announced not only to expedite the routing of the Public presentations but also to provide the very large Saturday patronage with the opportunity of seeking weekly performances on the opening day, rather than at the end of the week.

The program which will inaugurate this new policy on Saturday will be "C. Fields in 'The Old Army Game' and 'Circus Week' on the stage."

The presentation shown at the Metropolitan, the cast, the scenery, costumes, etc., are routed from New York city where they receive their premiere, through Boston and ten other cities as far west as Dallas, Tex. Many shipping difficulties are involved.

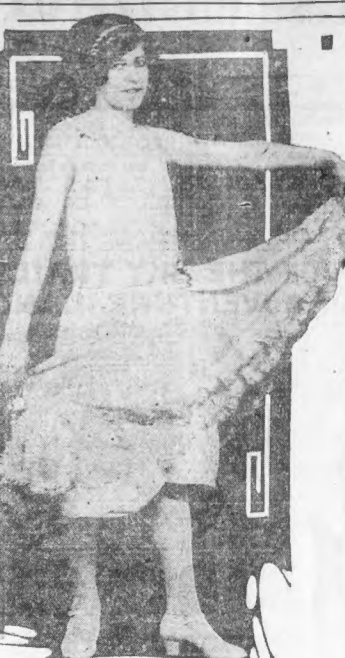

In the case of "Circus Week," with its young menagerie, huge circus, stage settings, unusually large cast and baggage, and with the present opening days on the circuit, it would have been utterly impossible to ship it on time.

By having the Saturday cities open each show one day earlier, enough time is permitted for a long trip west, where they even now in some cases have to open late as Monday of each week. Many patrons of the Metropolitan are unable to attend the performance any day but Saturday. Under the new Saturday opening plan they will be able to view each program on its opening day rather than at the end of the week.

SHE MAY BE BOSTON GIRL OF 1926

EDNA BARKMAN
West Roxbury is hoping this attractive miss will be chosen as Boston Girl of 1926.

Miss Jean Baker of Brighton is a business girl, wears smart business clothes and possesses a businesslike faculty of analytical observation. For some time she has been serving the photographs published as general samples of the country's current type of girl the Boston Evening American quest for The Boston Girl of 1926 has brought to light. She saw fashionable street ensembles, alluring evening dresses, smart sport clothes and arresting afternoon apparel. But not a single distinctively business ensemble.

So she came in to fill a void her observation detected.

Miss Violet Wright of Roxbury is a picture in a rose party dress. Her small ruffles are edged with gold thread and the skirt is ornamented with small bouquets of pale roses.

These smartly clad young women are typical Boston girls exemplifying the innate good taste in dress, personality and charm in dress, pose and appearance.

They are assisting the Boston Evening American in the search for The Boston Girl of 1926 whose distinctive style simulates her by submitting their photographs as examples of how smartly Boston girl attires herself.

Photographs will be received, or made at the office of the Boston Evening American free of charge, until midnight, Saturday, July 3. The postmark will settle whether a photograph was entered, time.

ROME GUARDED AGAINST RIOT

Rome, July 1 (INS).—Armed soldiers of the Carabinieri are posted on the streets of Rome and the unassisted citizens today as the new law increasing the Italian working day from eight hours to ten becomes effective.

The presence of soldiers is mostly as an object lesson to the Communists or subversive trouble makers who might try to stir up the workers to protest against the increased hours.

Thus far there has been no sign of any great opposition to the new order, inasmuch as they have recently received wage increases ranging from 10 to 25 per cent.
